DAY GALLERY

Lynda Hyde | Shake The Gate

In this, my second solo show for Day Gallery, you'll notice several distinct threads or themes.

Firstly, I continue my popular "Yester Déjà Vu" series, an exploration of Red, Black & White. The series is now up to 9 works, only 2 of which are still available.

There are also several strong Op Art pieces, exploring shifting points of focus and the perception of movement.

I've also spent time since my last show here creating Architectural Abstractions. These echo the time in the early 1970's when I first fell in love with Modernist Ideas & Art, while working as drawing office assistant on Harry Seidler's plans for the iconic MLC Building. I was working in the wonderful Plaza Building, part of the Australia Square precinct. Surrounded by amazing art and great ideas, it was a time that shaped my life.

Lastly, I've revisited a couple of my older ideas with fresh eyes and larger canvas. Knowing the space here at Day Gallery has allowed me to paint on a bigger scale and be a bit bolder with my work, both opportunities I'm thankful for.
